CHARLES E. EMMERICH

An Appreciation of Mr. Charles E. Emmerich

By MILO H. STUART

IT HAS hardly been long enough yet to distinguish between the work and the man who performed it. To most of us the Manual Training High School means Mr. Emmerich. No homesteader, building his cabin from logs of his own hewing, ever left the stamp of his individuality more clearly on his dwelling than did he on this, his school home. The more intimately we know both the man and the school the more apparent the likeness becomes. He was a pioneer. At twenty-one he came to this country well equipped with just the traits we like to call American—ready wit, love of a joke, shrewd insight into human nature, strong athletic physique, a big, sympathetic heart hiding itself from demonstration. With these traits he would have become a great American even if he had not added to them the Prussian high regard for real scholarship, characteristic of the Prussians; their thorough training in history, languages, music, and in soldierly accomplishments.

It was in the latter part of '65 when he came. He entered the regular army and was later sent with them to New Mexico. Becoming ill, he was to have been taken back to their fort, but on the way his condition became too serious to continue the journey and he was taken to a Kansas farm house to be cared for. It thus came about that we are indebted to a Kansas farmer in that he discovered in this convalescent soldier just the man to teach the country school near there. The next year he came to Madison and taught first in the district school there and later in the high school. It was while there that he wrote an article on Compulsory Education, which, when published in the Indianapolis Journal, attracted the attention of Mr. Shortridge, then Superintendent of Schools of this city. We all know the rest, how for nineteen years he devoted himself to teaching German in Shortridge, at the same time supervising the work in that language throughout the city school system; how he was given charge of High School No. 2; how some two and a half years afterward, in 1895, he began building into a new school every trait of his own personality. Pioneer still, the school became animate with that spirit. The American school-rooms of twenty years ago were not accustomed to the sound of hammer and anvil. A thorough scholar, he refused to give up one whit in scholarship while adding the training of the hand. An athlete, he fostered athletics. A musician, he founded the orchestra. Rigorously trained to obedience, he instituted a discipline the justice of which appealed to boys. Loyal, he met the response of loyalty. Industrious and alive, he set firmly the roots of growth. Lover of a joke, shrewd, human, big-hearted, he gave to the boys and girls of his charge that understanding, that sympathy in fun or trouble which made of the school a place to live.

All this is but to say he was a man who cared, and we loved him. We love him still. Personally, to me he was so rare and fatherly a friend that association with the school he loved becomes a sacred thing. No finer tribute can we bring to him than to foster in the place dear to him, those traits of mind and heart which characterized his service. His life motives he has himself set forth in his letter to the Seniors of 1908. Few men have written of their work in finer strain, none with greater sincerity. It is fitting that these words from his pen should close this little tribute to his memory.

"Forty years—all the best part of my life—but more especially the last sixteen years, as Principal, have been devoted to the welfare and interest of the young people entrusted to my care—and it has been at all times a sacred trust with me. The children of our dear school—which, with the able and loyal assistance of my fellow teachers, has made such wonderful growth and success—have always been to me as my own children. Their sorrow was my sorrow, their success my success, their happiness my happiness. Amidst the many discouragements and disappointments incident to my position, the consciousness of having won the respect, good will and affection of 'my children' has been a far greater compensation to me than any material reward for my work that could ever, possibly, have come to me."

Manual Training High School Today

By J. G. COLLICOTT

TWENTY years ago the Indianapolis Manual Training High School was founded for the special purpose of giving the young men and women of Indianapolis an opportunity for very definite and practical training. The spirit of personal service for the pupils of this school very early became one of the well-known ideals, not only of the founders themselves, but also of the first principal—Mr. Charles E. Emmerich, and his small group of earnest teachers. This spirit of personal service has always been well understood and duly appreciated by the pupils of Manual Training High School, and they, in turn, have shown on many occasions and in many splendid ways, their willingness to give in large measure of their own services to promote this ideal.

Perhaps no one has been in closer touch with this ideal of service as it has been wrought out year by year, than the present principal, Mr. M. H. Stuart, who as teacher, assistant principal and principal, had the good fortune to grow up with the traditions of this school. Mr. Stuart was closely and sympathetically associated with Mr. Emmerich, the architect and master-builder of Manual Training High School, and with Mr. Emmerich he has labored faithfully and effectively to make it possible for this great school to fulfil its mission.

The important question kept in mind at all times by the principal and teachers of this school has been, "How can we make our work best serve the individual needs of our pupils?" And each year this simple but fundamental social question has been answered with broader sympathy, with greater intelligence, and with higher efficiency.

From the day of its opening, this school has been a real and vital center of democracy, where young men and young women from all walks of life have come to work side by side at worthy tasks for brain and hand. From the walls of this school they have gone forth, not only with a spirit of personal appreciation for the benefits which they have received, but also with a splendid spirit of appreciation for the honest efforts and the good work of their associates. This is one of the important foundation stones in the structure of a permanent democracy. With the splendid spirit of co-operation on the part of pupils, patrons, teachers, and the members of the alumni, under the leadership of Mr. Stuart, the ideals of old M. T. H. S. will be upheld and her usefulness extended into all lines of human endeavor.

CAKE AND TROPHY, TRACK MEET, 1901

Our Alumni

By BEATRICE S. FOY

THE Manual Training High School Alumni was not organized until June, 1899. Previous to that year the graduates of High School No. 1 (now Shortridge), High School No. 2 (immersed into I. T. S.), and the Industrial Training School (now M. T. H. S.) were eligible to membership in the "High School Association," whose meetings were held annually in High School Hall, in June.

There was a desire on the part of the authorities to unite all high school graduates of the city in this one organization, for the sake of unity and good-fellowship, but it was seen at the meeting in June, 1898, that very few students from our school cared to become members of that body. A request was then made for an Alumni organization of our own. Mr. Emmerich gave permission to canvass for votes for or against, the proposition among our graduates. The work was put into the hands of "The Literary Club," a society of young men graduates of the school, who were the originators of the suggestion and plan.

Under the leadership of Mr. Allan P. Vestal the question was presented to "The Saturday Afternoon Travel Club," which was composed of young lady graduates of the school, and they entered upon the plan of work with enthusiasm. Very soon the name of every graduate was signed to a petition which was presented to Mr. Emmerich, the Principal, who readily gave his consent with a promise of his hearty co-operation.

The Alumni Association was then organized the following June (1899) with Allan P. Vestal (Feb. '98) acting as chairman. The Constitution and By-Laws adopted were the same as those of "The High School Association" with only such alterations as were deemed necessary to fit the new situation.

A second meeting was held in December of the same year with Howard S. Young (June '98) the presiding officer, and there were 150 members present. Mr. Emmerich had charge of the arrangement of the programme. An election of officers was held, and the following were selected for the ensuing year:

Allan P. Vestal (Feb. '98), President
 Allen McCorkle (June '99), Vice-President
 Mrs. Hettie Bosley Goldrick (Feb. '97), Secretary
 Mr. C. E. Emmerich, Treasurer ex-officio

A vote was taken as to the time of year in which the meetings should be held, a few favoring the Christmas holidays, but the majority favored the end of the school year in June and so it was decided.

Much credit is due the first officers for the success of the undertaking. The President, especially, worked hard and faithfully until every detail of the organization was completed in a businesslike manner, and a complete register of names was made at the time, with great care and precision. One pleasant feature was the hearty co-operation received from the members of the Alumni by the officers and committees. Every one was enthusiastically interested and the attendance was increasingly large every year. Members far away, unable to attend, sent greetings, often accompanied with a substantial evidence of interest, their yearly dues.

In the year 1906 it was found necessary to elect a permanent secretary, upon whom the great responsibility of keeping the records could be placed, for officers were growing careless and indifferent to the necessity for accuracy in the records of the now large and important organization. Miss Emily Helming, of the June '95 class and a member of the faculty, was elected secretary, ex-officio, and to her is due the credit of the card index record of the graduates of the school, as complete as she is able to make it. To her, also, much is due for the success of the reunions for the past years since she has been in office. She has been tireless in her efforts to make every reunion a successful and happy one. Her faithful, conscientious work, more than that of any other one person, has given to the members of the Alumni, year after year, an evening of joy and happiness with old friends and associates. Her loyalty to the school is noteworthy and commendable.

To the graduates, the Alumni is the last tie that binds them to the school. Just how vital it is, only a graduate can know. It revives old memories, strengthens old bonds, renews former friendships, and gives unity to the ever-increasing number of graduates. The Alumni stands for loyalty to the school, a loyalty that should continue throughout life, for it is by the work of the graduates that the school is known and judged.

At the end of ten years we numbered 970 graduates—to-day we number a few over 3,000 (3,050). Among the Alumni are men and women in every profession and calling of importance. Men and women who are leaders in the uplift of humanity and progress of the times. They are in every part of the known world doing their part in the world's work. We hear of them constantly, no matter how far away, an occasional message is brought to us, telling of their good work, and we feel that Manual Training High School has done what she could.
